France and Germany.

The German Reichstag was crowded yes terday, the occasion being the calling up of the Government's Military bill in its amended form for a second reading. Gen. Von Moltke opened the debate in favor of the second reading on behalf of the government. Baron Stauffenberg followed General Von Moltke, and while he was speaking Prince Bismerck entered the champer. Prince Bismarck entered the champer. Prince Bismarck rose and in the course of his speech said: "Our relations with France continue good. To maintain them is difficult, because a long historical process must be accomplished before the feelings of the past are appeased and differences reconciled. We have done everything to induce the French to forget and forgive. We have no present ground to apprehend war with France. Neither have we any reason to fear it if it should happen. There can be no question about our attacking France, but we must protect ourselves against attacks. we must protect ourselves against attacks. Under no circumstances shall we attack Under no circumstances shall we attack France, but we shall always be compelled to arm ourselves in such a manner as to be equal to the contingency of war. This is the surpreme object of the arm; bill. I have firm confidence in the peaceful disposition of the French government and a portion of the French people. Still, the past teaches us that we cannot count upon peace with France as permanent. A past teaches us that we cannot count upon peace with France as permanent. A government may one day come into power at Paris which will make war upon us. This you must take into account. If we do not prepare—if you say to-day, 'when wer comes we shall grant everything,'we should be laughed at. Is there in France a single paper or a single public person who says 'we renounce our rights to Alsace-Lorraine?' The possibility of French aggression is, therefore, a sufficient motive for the bill. France is a strong and well armed power; her army is brave and ready to fight. must never sit idie with our hands in our laps, however peaceful France may look for the moment. Suppose the French proved victorious, what would we have to expect?

We should have the same French grands us from whom we suffered from 1807 to 1813, and who would again so suck our blood that we would be paralyzed for thirty years.
Endeavors would be made as 'Give us Hanover.' I am only describing possibilities that might arise in the event of our defeat. The peace of 1870 is mere child's play in comparison with what peace would be after a war in 1890. He who wishes to take the responsibility for this, let him.
